

OUTLINE OF POLISH LABOUR LAW SYSTEM

edited by Krzysztof W. Baran

Krzysztof W. Baran, Bolesław M. Ćwiertniak
Dominika Dörre-Kolasa, Zbigniew Góral
Mariusz Lekston, Krzysztof Walczak
Mirosław Włodarczyk, Marcin Wujczyk

OUTLINE OF POLISH LABOUR LAW SYSTEM

edited by Krzysztof W. Baran

Krzysztof W. Baran, Bolesław M. Ćwiertniak

Dominika Dörre-Kolasa, Zbigniew Góral

Mariusz Lekston, Krzysztof Walczak

Mirosław Włodarczyk, Marcin Wujczyk

Zamów książkę w księgarni internetowej

proinfo.pl
księgarnia internetowa

Publikacja została dofinansowana przez Wydział Prawa i Administracji
Uniwersytetu Jagiellońskiego

Recenzent

Dr hab. Anna Musiała

Wydawca

Magdalena Stojek-Siwińska

Redaktor prowadzący

Joanna Maź

Opracowanie redakcyjne

Anna Sorówka-Łach

Łamanie

Violet Design Wioletta Kowalska

Indeks rzeczowy

Dominika Zielińska, Piotr Sekulski

Ta książka jest wspólnym dziełem twórcy i wydawcy. Prosimy, byś przestrzegał przysługujących im praw. Książkę możesz udostępnić osobom bliskim lub osobiście znanym, ale nie publikuj jej w internecie. Jeśli cytujesz fragmenty, nie zmieniaj ich treści i koniecznie zaznacz, czyje to dzieło. A jeśli musisz skopiować część, rób to jedynie na użytek osobisty.

prawoLubni

SZANUJMY PRAWO I WŁASNOŚĆ
Więcej na www.legalnakultura.pl
POLSKA IZBA KSIĄŻKI

© Copyright by
Wolters Kluwer SA, 2016

ISBN: 978-83-264-8653-1

Dział Praw Autorskich

01-208 Warszawa, ul. Przyokopowa 33

tel. 22 535 82 19

e-mail: ksiazki@wolterskluwer.pl

www.wolterskluwer.pl

księgarnia internetowa www.profinfo.pl

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

Krzysztof W. Baran – Professor and Head of the Chair of Labour Law and Social Policy of the Jagiellonian University in Kraków. He has a broad expertise and tutoring experience in training human resources staff. He is the author and co-author of about 200 publications embracing several monographs, textbooks and commentaries, including commentaries to the Labour Code and collective labour law acts. Professor is also the editor-in-chief of the fundamental for the Polish labour law twelve-volume publication on the Polish labour law system: “System prawa pracy”.

Bolesław Maciej Ćwiertniak – Professor at the Institute of Administration and Law at Humanitas University in Sosnowiec. He is Secretary of Legal and Economic Studies Committee at the Polish Academy of Sciences Branch in Katowice and the author and co-author of over 160 publications in the field of labour law and social policy, civil service, local government law.

Dominika Dörre-Kolasa – Doctor of Law, lecturer at the Chair of Labour Law and Social Policy of the Jagiellonian University in Kraków, legal advisor. She is a recognised expert in the field of protection of personal rights and the author of several publications on labour law, including those pertaining to the protection of personal data and personal rights of employees, workplace monitoring, harassment and mobbing.

Zbigniew Góral – Professor at the University of Łódź, Head of the Chair of Labour Law, former Vice-Chancellor and Dean of the Faculty of Law and Administration. He is the author of about 150 publications concerning labour law, civil service, unemployment, and collective labour law.

Mariusz Lekston – Doctor of Law and Vice-Chancellor for Organizational, Legal and Human Resources Affairs at Humanitas University in Sosnowiec. He represents the University with respect to labour law matters. He is Assistant Professor at the Institute of Administration and Law at Humanitas University and the author of publications in the field of labour law, including those covering issues of employment of academic teachers and uniformed services.

Krzysztof Walczak – Professor at the Faculty of Management of the University of Warsaw, partner and consultant in a legal firm. He is the author of over 150 publications in the field of Polish and European labour law and co-author of commentaries to the Labour Code and collective labour law acts.

Mirosław Włodarczyk – Professor and Head of the Chair of the Law of Social Security and Social Policy at the University of Łódź, Supervisor of PhD studies at the Faculty of Law and Administration. He is the author of about 70 academic publications concerning the sources of labour law, subjects and content of the employment relationship, employment of young people and children, and regulation of the labour market.

Marcin Wujczyk – Doctor of Law and Assistant Professor at the Chair of Labour Law and Social Policy at the Jagiellonian University in Kraków. Since 2013 he has been a member of the European Committee of Social Rights of the Council of Europe. In the years 2014-2015 he conducted research on discrimination in employment as an academic visitor at Oxford University. He holds the position of Secretary in Labour Law and Social Policy Studies at the Jagiellonian University. He is also a member of the Editorial Board of the European Journal of Social Security (EJSS) and a national correspondent for European Labour Law Cases. Since 2015 he has been a member of the Executive Committee of the International Labour and Employment Relations Association (ILERA). He is the author of a number of publications on individual and collective employment and labour law, including a monograph “Wypowiedzenie zmieniające” concerning conditions for termination of an employment contract and the award-winning book on the employee’s right to privacy protection “Prawo pracownika do ochrony prywatności”.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

TITLE ONE

GENERAL LABOUR LAW	19
---------------------------------	----

Chapter I

The concept and subject-matter of labour law	21
1. Definitions of labour law	21
2. Classification of labour law	24
3. Characteristics of labour law	25
3.1. General notes	25
3.2. Uniformity and differentiation of labour law	26
3.3. Europeanisation of labour law	26

Chapter II

Labour law in the Polish legal system	28
1. General notes	28
2. Labour law and civil law	28
3. Labour law and social insurance law	29
4. Labour law and copyright law	30
5. Labour law and constitutional law	30
6. Labour law and administrative law	31
7. Labour law and criminal law	31
8. Labour law and international law	32

Chapter III

Functions of labour law	33
1. Overview of functions of labour law	33
2. Protective function of labour law	34
3. Organisational function of labour law	35
4. Irenic function of labour law	36
5. Redistributive function of labour law	38

Chapter IV

Interpretation of provisions of labour law	40
1. The concept and subject-matter of interpretation of labour laws	40

2. Types of interpretation of labour law provisions	41
3. Process of interpretation of labour laws	42
4. Loopholes in labour law	43
Chapter V
Principles of labour law	45
1. The concept and meaning of labour law principles in the Polish labour law doctrine	45
2. Systematisation of the principles of labour law	47
3. Functions of labour law principles	49
4. Characteristics of fundamental principles of labour law set out in the Labour Code	51
4.1. Principle of the right to work and the freedom of labour	51
4.2. Principle of freedom to enter employment relationship and to determine the terms of employment	54
4.3. Principle of respect by an employer of employee's dignity and of other employee's personal rights	56
4.4. Principle of equal treatment and non-discrimination in employment	59
4.5. Principle of the right to fair remuneration for work	60
4.6. Principle of the right to rest	63
4.7. Principle of provision by an employer of safe and healthy working conditions	65
4.8. Principle of meeting the vital, social and cultural needs of employees	67
4.9. Principle of facilitation of skills upgrading	68
4.10. Favourability principle (zasada uprzywilejowania pracownika)	69
4.11. Fundamental principles of collective labour law	72
Chapter VI
Overview of the history of the Polish labour law	74
Chapter VII
Equal treatment in employment	78
1. The concept of equal treatment	78
2. Principle of equal treatment in employment	79
3. Forms of discrimination	79
4. Harassment and sexual harassment	80
5. Justified differentiation	81
6. Consequences of breach of the principle of equal treatment in employment	81
Chapter VIII
Sources of labour law	83
1. The concept and hierarchy of sources of labour law	83
2. General sources of labour law	85
2.1. Constitution of the Republic of Poland	85
2.2. Acts/laws (ustawy)	86
2.3. Regulations (rozporządzenia)	88
3. Specific sources of labour law	89
3.1. Collective agreements	89
3.1.1. Legal nature of collective agreements	89
3.1.2. Personal scope of collective agreements	90

3.1.3. Material scope of collective agreements	91
3.1.4. Procedures for the conclusion of collective agreements	93
3.1.5. Registration of collective agreements	94
3.1.6. Entry into force of collective agreements	96
3.1.7. Transformations of collective agreements	96
3.1.8. Termination of collective agreements	97
3.1.9. Sectoral collective agreements (ponadzakładowe układy zbiorowe pracy)	99
3.1.10. Company-level collective agreements (zakładowe układy zbiorowe pracy)	100
3.2. Agreements in connection with transfer of business to a new employer	102
3.3. Agreement on suspension of provisions of labour law	103
3.4. Agreements on application of less favourable terms and conditions of employment	104
3.5. Teleworking agreements	105
3.6. Social agreements (porozumienia społeczne)	105
4. Internal regulations	106
4.1. Internal rules (regulaminy)	106
4.1.1. Wage rules (regulamin wynagradzania)	107
4.1.2. Work rules (regulamin pracy)	109
4.2. Statutes (statuty)	110
5. International labour law	111
5.1. International labour regulations	112
5.2. Labour law of the Council of Europe	113
5.3. Legal acts adopted in the European Union and their effect	114
5.4. Areas covered by European labour law	116

TITLE TWO

INDIVIDUAL LABOUR LAW	119
------------------------------------	-----

Chapter IX

Employment relationship	121
1. Concept and nature of employment relationship	121
1.1. Concepts of employment relationship	121
1.2. Characteristics of employment relationship	122
2. Labour law employment relationship (stosunek pracy) and other employment relationships (stosunki zatrudnienia)	125
2.1. The concepts of “self-employment” and “employment”	125
2.2. Types of non-employee employment (employment not between an employee and an employer)	126
2.3. Elements of the labour law employment relationship	129
3. Parties to the labour law employment relationship	130
3.1. General notes	130
3.2. Employee	132
3.3. The concept of an employer	133
3.4. Employer – a natural person	134
3.5. Employer – an organisational unit	135
3.6. Representation of an employer being an organisational unit	138

Chapter X

Contract of employment	140
1. Internal and external recruitment	140
2. Protection of personal data of job candidates and employees	140
3. Types of contracts of employment	142
3.1. Contract for a probationary period (umowa na okres próbny)	142
3.2. Contract for a fixed term (umowa na czas określony)	143
3.3. Contract of employment for an indefinite term (umowa o pracę na czas nieokreślony)	144
4. Telework	144
5. Contents of a contract of employment	145

Chapter XI

Transformations of an employment relationship	147
1. Change of an employment relationship	147
2. Agreement to amend the terms and conditions of employment (porozumienie zmieniające)	150
3. Notice of amendment of the terms and conditions of a contract of employment (wypowiedzenie zmieniające warunki umowy o pracę)	152
4. Assignment of an employee to other work	162
5. Temporary change of terms and conditions of a contract of employment resulting from specific regulations	166

Chapter XII

Termination of an employment relationship	168
1. Introduction	168
2. Agreement between the parties	169
3. Restrictions on termination of a contract of employment	169
3.1. General protection of sustainability of an employment relationship	169
3.2. Consultation (with a company trade union organisation) of the intention to terminate a contract for an indefinite term	170
3.3. Consultation (with a company trade union organisation) of the intention to terminate a contract of employment without notice	172
3.4. Special protection of sustainability of an employment relationship	173
3.5. Restrictions on termination of a contract of employment by reason of personal or family situation of an employee	173
3.5.1. Protection of the employment relationship during a pre-retirement period	173
3.5.2. Protection of the employment relationship during a period of excusable absence	174
3.5.3. Protection of the employment relationship of pregnant women or women during maternity leave	175
3.6. Restrictions on termination of a contract of employment based on the employee's function	176
3.6.1. Special protection of sustainability of the employment relationship of employees performing trade union functions	176

3.6.2. Special protection of sustainability of the employment relationship of members of workers' council	184
3.6.3. Special protection of sustainability of the employment relationship of a social labour inspector	185
4. Termination of a contract of employment upon notice	185
4.1. Notice of termination of a contract of employment as a unilateral declaration of will	185
4.2. Scope of application of a notice of termination as a method of termination of a contract of employment	188
4.3. Formal requirements	189
4.4. Notice periods for termination of a contract of employment	193
4.5. Reduction of a notice period	196
4.6. Job-search leave of absence (zwolnienie na poszukiwanie pracy)	198
5. Termination of a contract of employment without notice	199
5.1. Termination of a contract of employment without notice by an employer	200
5.1.1. Termination of a contract of employment without notice by an employer for reasons attributable to an employee	200
5.1.2. Termination of a contract of employment without notice by an employer for reasons not attributable to an employee	203
5.2. Termination of a contract of employment without notice by an employee	205
5.2.1. Termination of a contract of employment without notice by an employee for reasons not attributable to an employer	205
5.2.2. Termination of a contract of employment without notice by an employee for reasons attributable to an employer	206
6. Legal consequences of defective termination of a contract of employment	207
6.1. Legal consequences of defective termination of a contract of employment upon notice	207
6.2. Legal consequences of defective termination of a contract of employment without notice by an employer	210
6.3. Legal consequences of defective termination of a contract of employment without notice by an employee	212
7. Other cases of termination of a contract of employment by an employee	213
7.1. Termination of a contract of employment in connection with reinstatement	213
7.2. Termination of a contract of employment in connection with acquisition of an employee by a new employer	215
8. Expiration of a contract of employment	215
8.1. Death of an employee	215
8.2. Death of an employer	215
8.3. Employee's absence from work caused by pre-trial detention	215
8.4. Claims in connection with expiration of an employment relationship	216

Chapter XIII

Transfer of an establishment to another employer	217
1. The concept of transfer of an establishment or a part of an establishment to another employer	217
2. Succession of obligations	218

3. Negotiations with an employees' representation and information obligation in the absence of trade unions	219
4. Rights of employees	220

Chapter XIV

Employment of temporary agency workers	222
1. Introduction	222
2. Restrictions on temporary agency work	222
2.1. Material restrictions	223
2.2. Time restrictions of temporary agency work	223
2.3. Personal restrictions	224
2.3.1. User-employer	224
2.3.2. Temporary-work agency	225
3. Conclusion and content of a temporary work contract	225
4. Protection of a temporary agency worker against discrimination	228

Chapter XV

Non-contractual employment relationships	229
1. The concept and classification of non-contractual employment relationships	229
1.1. The concept and origins of non-contractual employment relationships	229
1.2. Classification of non-contractual employment relationships	231
2. Employment relationship by election (wybór)	231
2.1. The scope of employment relationships by election	231
2.2. Legal nature of an employment relationship by election	232
2.3. Establishment of an employment relationship by election	233
2.4. Admissibility of amendment of the terms and conditions of employment by election	234
2.5. Ending the employment relationship by election	234
2.6. Rights and obligations of elected employees	236
3. Employment relationship by appointment (powołanie)	237
3.1. The scope of employment relationships by appointment	237
3.2. Legal nature of the act of appointment	239
3.3. Establishment of an employment relationship by appointment	240
3.4. Admissibility of amendment of the terms and conditions of employment by appointment	241
3.5. Ending the employment relationship by appointment	243
3.6. Terms of employment relationship of appointed employees	245
4. Employment relationship by nomination (mianowanie)	246
4.1. The scope of employment relationships by nomination	246
4.2. Legal nature of the act of nomination	247
4.3. Establishment of an employment relationship by nomination	248
4.4. Amendment of the terms and conditions of employment by nomination	250
4.5. Ending the employment relationship of nominated employees	252
4.6. Terms of employment relationship of nominated employees	254

Chapter XVI

Rights and obligations of the parties to an employment relationship	256
1. Obligations of an employer	256
1.1. Information obligation	256
1.2. Obligation to properly organise work	259
1.3. Obligation to prevent discrimination	260
1.4. Obligation to ensure safe and healthy working conditions	261
1.5. Obligation to pay wages timely and properly	261
1.6. Obligation to facilitate upgrading of professional skills	262
1.7. Obligation to create an environment conducive to adaptation to proper performance of work	262
1.8. Obligation to meet social needs of employees	263
1.9. Obligation to apply objective and fair criteria of evaluating employees	263
1.10. Obligation to keep documentation and personnel files	264
1.11. Obligation to foster development of the rules of social coexistence in the workplace	264
1.12. Obligation to prevent mobbing	265
1.13. Obligation to issue an employment certificate (świadectwo pracy)	267
1.13.1. Contents of an employment certificate	269
1.13.2. Legal fictions in the employment certificate	269
1.13.3. Procedure for rectification of the employment certificate	270
2. Claim for compensation	271
3. Obligations of an employee	272
3.1. Obligation to perform work diligently and with due care	272
3.2. Obligation to comply with superiors' instructions	273
3.3. Employee's obligations relating to order at the workplace	274
3.4. Obligation to have regard for the welfare of the establishment	275
3.5. Obligation of secrecy	277
3.6. Obligation to comply with the rules of social coexistence	278

Chapter XVII

Non-compete obligation	280
1. General principles	280
2. Restrictions on competitive activity in the absence of non-compete agreement	281
3. Non-compete agreement during the term of employment relationship	282
4. Post-employment non-compete agreement	282

Chapter XVIII

Remuneration for work	285
1. Legal bases for wage setting	285
2. Prohibition of wage discrimination	288
3. Protection of remuneration for work	289
3.1. Rules of payment of remuneration	289
3.2. Restrictions on deductions from remuneration	290
4. Benefits in the case of non-performance of work	291
5. Benefits payable to an employee in connection with ending an employment relationship	293
6. Protection of employees' claims in case of the employer's insolvency	294

Chapter XIX

Working time	296
1. The concept of working time	296
2. Number of working hours	297
3. Rest period	298
4. Working time systems	298
5. Overtime work	302
6. Duty hours	304
7. Working time of managers	305
8. Work at night	306
9. Work on Sundays and on public holidays	307

Chapter XX

Leaves	309
1. Annual leave	309
1.1. Essential elements of the concept of annual leave	309
1.2. Acquisition of right to the annual leave	310
1.3. Amount of the annual leave	310
1.4. Rules for granting of leave	312
1.5. Deferral of the leave in unforeseen circumstances	313
1.6. Proportionate leave	315
1.7. Leave on demand	315
1.8. Termination of a contract of employment and the right to annual leave	316
2. Unpaid leave	316
3. Special leaves (zwolnienia okolicznościowe)	317

Chapter XXI

Liability for breach of order at the workplace and disciplinary liability	319
1. General notes	319
2. Liability for breach of order at the workplace (odpowiedzialność porządkowa)	319
2.1. Legal nature and conditions of liability for breach of order at the workplace	319
2.2. Infringements and penalties for breach of order at the workplace	320
2.3. Procedure for imposing penalties for breach of order at the workplace	321
2.4. Appeals procedure	324
2.5. Declaring the penalty null and void	325
3. Disciplinary liability (odpowiedzialność dyscyplinarna)	326
3.1. Personal scope and conditions of disciplinary liability	326
3.2. Types of disciplinary penalties	327
3.3. Disciplinary boards and disciplinary prosecutor	328
3.4. Disciplinary procedure and judicial review of disciplinary decisions	328
3.5. Deletion of penalty from files (zatarcie kary)	329
3.6. Minor infringements	330

Chapter XXII

Financial liability of employees	331
1. Legal nature and conditions of financial liability of employees	331
2. Financial liability for the damage caused by the employee unintentionally	335

3. Financial liability for the damage caused by the employee intentionally	336
4. Liability for damage caused to a third party	337
5. Responsibility for the entrusted property	338
5.1. Financial liability for the damage caused by the employee to the entrusted property	338
5.2. Mitigation of liability for the entrusted property	341
5.3. Joint liability of employees for the entrusted property	343
6. Limitation of claims	345

Chapter XXIII

General protection of labour	346
1. Introduction	346
2. Basic obligations of an employer in respect of the occupational health and safety (OHS)	347
2.1. Responsibility for health and safety at work	347
2.2. Obligation to cooperate with other employers	347
2.3. Training obligation	348
2.4. Obligation to familiarise the employees with OHS rules and regulations	348
2.5. Obligations in respect of preventive health care of employees	348
2.5.1. Obligation to inform of occupational risk	348
2.5.2. Obligation to prevent occupational diseases and other work-related diseases	349
2.5.3. Obligation to perform preventive medical examinations	350
2.6. Obligation to provide employees with supportive drinks and meals	351
2.7. Obligation to provide employees with appropriate hygiene and sanitary facilities and necessary personal hygiene and sanitary products	351
2.8. Other obligations of the employer	352
3. Rights and obligations of employees in respect of occupational health and safety	352
3.1. Right to refrain from work	352
3.2. Obligation to comply with OHS rules and regulations	353
4. Labour protection bodies	355
4.1. OHS service	355
4.2. Occupational health and safety commission	356
4.3. Consultations on occupational health and safety	356
5. Compensation for property lost or damaged in connection with an accident at work	357

Chapter XXIV

Protection of parenthood	358
1. Introduction	358
2. Prohibition on the employment of women in work which is particularly arduous or harmful to health	359
3. Principles of employment of pregnant workers	360
4. Leaves connected with raising children	361
5. Rights of employees raising children	364
6. Special protection of sustainability of employment relationship	365

Chapter XXV

Employment and protection of work of young people and children	367
1. Employment of adolescents	367
1.1. Introduction	367
1.2. Contract of employment for vocational preparation (umowa o pracę w celu przygotowania zawodowego)	369
1.3. Protection of health of young workers	371
1.4. Employment of adolescents under a contract of employment for performing light-duty work	372
2. Employment of children below 16 years of age	373

TITLE THREE

COLLECTIVE LABOUR LAW	377
------------------------------------	-----

Chapter XXVI

Freedom of association	379
1. Introduction	379
2. Freedom of association in trade unions and employers' organisations	380
2.1. Freedom of association in trade unions	380
2.2. Freedom of association in employers' organisations	382
2.3. Models of organisation of workers' and employers' movement	383
3. Independence of trade unions and employers' organisations	385
4. Self-governance of trade unions and employers' organisations	388

Chapter XXVII

Legal status of trade unions	393
1. Establishment of trade unions	393
2. Registration of trade unions	394
3. Functions of trade unions	396
4. Powers of trade unions	398

Chapter XXVIII

Employers' organisations	405
1. Establishment of employers' organisations	405
2. Registration of employers' organisations	406
3. Functions and powers of employers' organisations	407

Chapter XXIX

Employee participation	409
1. Introduction	409
2. Ad hoc representatives	409
3. Workers' councils	410
4. European Works Council	413
5. Other forms of employee participation	415

Chapter XXX

Social dialogue	416
1. The concept of social dialogue	416

2. Council of Social Dialogue (Rada Dialogu Społecznego)	417
2.1. Competences of the Council of Social Dialogue	418
3. Voivodship (provincial) councils of social dialogue (wojewódzkie rady dialogu społecznego)	420
4. Social dialogue in the law-making process	421
5. Social dialogue on the labour market	421
6. Social dialogue in matters relating to occupational health and safety	422
7. Participation of representatives of social partners in supervision of public institutions as a form of social dialogue	422
8. Social dialogue in the establishment	424

Chapter XXXI

Collective labour disputes	425
1. Introduction	425
2. The subject-matter of a collective labour dispute	426
3. Parties to a collective labour dispute	428
4. Initiation of a collective labour dispute	430
5. Methods of resolving collective labour disputes	430
6. Irenic methods of resolving collective labour disputes	431
6.1. Conciliation	431
6.2. Mediation	433
6.3. Arbitration	434
7. Non-irenic methods of resolving collective labour disputes	436
7.1. Strike	436
7.1.1. Right to strike	436
7.1.2. Restrictions of the right to strike	437
7.1.3. Principles of organisation of a strike	439
7.2. Other industrial actions	443
7.3. Lockout	444

TITLE FOUR

PROCEDURAL LABOUR LAW	447
------------------------------------	-----

Chapter XXXII

Legal protection of labour relations	449
1. Models of legal protection in labour relations	449
2. Out-of-court legal protection bodies	450
3. Labour courts	452
3.1. Organisation of labour courts	452
3.2. Powers of labour courts	453
3.2.1. Introduction	453
3.2.2. Matters involving claims arising from employment relationship	453
3.2.3. Matters involving employment-related claims	454
3.2.4. Matters involving claims arising from other legal relationships to which provisions of labour law apply under separate laws	456
3.2.5. Actions for compensation against an employer in the event of accidents at work and occupational diseases	457

3.2.6. Actions to establish existence or non-existence of a legal relationship or rights under an employment relationship	457
Chapter XXXIII
Labour inspection	459
1. Introduction	459
2. National Labour Inspectorate (Państwowa Inspekcja Pracy, PIP)	460
3. Social labour inspection	463
4. Other supervisory and control bodies	464
Chapter XXXIV
Limitation of claims and final deadlines	466
1. Introduction	466
2. Limitation of claims (przedawnienie roszczeń)	467
3. Final deadlines (terminy zawite)	474
Chapter XXXV
Accidents at work and occupational diseases – an overview	476
1. Introduction	476
2. Accidents at work	477
3. An accident equivalent to an accident at work	480
4. Procedure for determining circumstances and causes of accidents at work	481
5. Occupational diseases	481
6. Benefits in respect of accidents at work and occupational diseases	483
Index	485

TITLE ONE

GENERAL LABOUR LAW

Chapter I

THE CONCEPT AND SUBJECT-MATTER OF LABOUR LAW

1. Definitions of labour law

Definitions of basic concepts relevant to certain fields of study are of major importance both in empirical sciences and in practical application of the law. In the Polish literature on the subject, the term of “labour law” appeared rather late, during the interwar period, although in a rather limited scope. The terms used more frequently at that time were: “workers’ law”, “industrial law”, “workers’ and industrial law”, “factory legislation” or similar. The term “labour law” became popular at the end of the interwar period and definitely prevailed after the World War II.

It became a legal term even later, under the Act of 26 June 1974 – Labour Code (ustawa z dnia 26 czerwca 1974 – Kodeks pracy).¹ In several legal acts of the interwar period, the set of norms governing the material scope of employment relationships (e.g. relating to industrial workers) was called “provisions on the contracts of employment”² and after the war the legal texts used the term “labour legislation”³ without giving legal definitions of those terms. Therefore, by reference to the latter, it is possible to distinguish between scholarly definitions and legal (normative) definitions of labour law.

Initially, the legal doctrine defined labour law as a set of norms determining the employee status (called status definitions). Soon such definitions were considered too “narrow” and not corresponding with the scope of the labour law as a branch. At that time, definitions of labour law as a separate branch of the legal system of the Republic of Poland, governing employment relations and other social relations directly linked to employment relations, became more popular.

¹ Consolidated text: Journal of Laws [Dz.U.] of 2014, item 1502 as amended.

² Regulation of the President of the Republic of Poland of 27 June 1934 – Commercial Code (Rozporządzenie Prezydenta RP z dnia 27 czerwca 1934 – Kodeks handlowy; Journal of Laws [Dz.U.] no. 57, item 502 as amended).

³ See, for example, Article XII § 1 of the Act on implementation of the Civil Code.

Therefore, the literature developed a specific “standard” method of defining and the related definitions of labour law which may be called “standard” definitions⁴.

Both types of the definitions have certain functional elements called ontological, systemic and subject-matter:

- 1) the first one assumes existence of labour law (as a specific set of legal norms),
- 2) the second treats such set of norms as a separate, independent branch of a given legal system, and
- 3) the third makes reference to the set of legal norms (“subject-matter of labour law”).

Since the time of codification of the labour law, our legal system has used the legal definition of “labour law”. It should be understood as: “(...) provisions of the Labour Code and provisions of other laws (ustawy) and implementing acts (akty wykonawcze) regarding the rights and obligations of workers and employers, as well as provisions of collective agreements (układy zbiorowe) and other collective arrangements (porozumienia zbiorowe) based on laws, internal rules (regulaminy) and statutes (statuty) concerning the rights and obligations of parties to an employment relationship”. It should be noted that consecutive paragraphs of the abovementioned article establish a specific hierarchy of sources of labour law.

Definitions of labour law assume for an element the subject-matter of a given branch of law. It is rightly pointed out that no such social relations exist which would generally be “uniform in nature” and grouping, systematisation and classification of such relations are logical measures based on a stated convention. Through “arbitrary convention” lawyers have determined also the subject-matter of labour law and agreed that this branch of law governs all social relations relating to subordinated work of people. Quite commonly, those relations were called labour law relations. Although the previously mentioned definitions of labour law give an impression of uniformity of opinions on these matters, the subject-matter of labour law still remains very controversial and the views on the labour law still vary in terms of time and space. As noted earlier, such “social employment relations” must be defined formally, through “arbitrary convention”. In this regard, a reference can be made to general remarks of legal academics according to which “in the absence of appropriately general criteria” the subject-matter of labour law should be distinguished “not through a classic definition by genus and differentia specifica but through specification of its component parts”. Each author of such definition, having specified the “employment relationships”, to further determine the subject-matter of labour law must list and indicate those groups of social relations which he considers “practically related to work”.

A relatively broader consensus was achieved in relation to the concept of “employment relationship”. It is assumed that such relationship should be an obligation relationship and have a homogeneous structure. And the scope of “employment relationships” should be determined by the already defined criteria which distinguish them from other obligation relationships, such as: continuity of work, remuneration, performance, subordination of an employee and risk of the employer associated with the work process. However, it is still pointed out that such criteria do not ensure precise delimitation of those relationships. In this context, the legal nature of specific relations was often determined by case-law which developed, under the same legal provisions (Articles 2, 3, 22 of the Labour Code), the variable scope of that concept.

⁴ However, some handbooks still use definitions which refer to the employee status.

Even more discussions and scholarly disputes, causing far-reaching consequences in the practice of law enforcement authorities, arise from removal of those areas of social relations which should be considered “directly” and “intrinsically” linked to employment relationships. This applies both to specification of the groups (types) of social relations which should be a part of the subject-matter of labour law and to determination of the scope of social relations which should be included in each of those groups.

Those relations were presented in our literature on the subject in different ways:

- 1) by placing them on the time axis and comparing their duration to the duration of an employment relationship,
- 2) by taking into account both the subject-matter and the method of legal regulation of the relationships included in the labour law (see section 2 of this chapter).

Historically older is the first one, where the following relationships are distinguished besides the employment relationship:

- 1) relationships preceding the employment relationship,
- 2) relationships established along with the employment relationship and concurrent with the employment relationship or even exceeding its term,
- 3) relationships resulting from the already terminated employment relationship.

The relationships preceding the employment relationship include mainly: job matching, job counselling, vocational training (nauka zawodu), apprenticeship (przyuczenie do określonej pracy), legal relations connected with the conclusion of employment relationships (such as competitions, preliminary contracts); it is questionable whether some new types of social relationships, such as relationships related to internship or volunteering, should be included in this group.

The second group includes relations connected with the collective rights (of groups of workers, e.g. benefits from the company social benefits fund or, as argued by some scholars, occupational pension schemes), employee co-management relationships, relationships involving establishment of and participation in professional organisations (employers’ organisations, workers’ organisations, mainly trade unions). This group includes also relations within individual and collective labour disputes. Some legal scholars include in this category also legal relations concerning supervision over

The book is a complete analysis of the institution of the Polish labour law. It covers issues regarding both individual and group working relationships, especially those which involve trade unions, workers' councils and European works councils. Topics referring to the job market and the role of the state in its regulation have also been touched upon.

This comprehensive analysis of the Polish labour law will allow the readers to fully familiarise themselves with regulations of labour law which are binding in Poland.

The book will be useful not only for the readers from abroad. A number of institutions of the Polish labour law are presented in great detail. Many cases introduce different views from judicial decisions and the most appropriate manner of interpreting the provisions. Owing to the above, this book will be of invaluable assistance to practitioners working in international corporations or for international clients.

The publication takes into account the current legal status and new regulations introduced to the Labour Code with respect to contracts for a fixed term and parental leaves.

ZAMÓWIENIA:

INFOLINIA 801 04 45 45, FAX 22 535 80 01

ZAMOWIENIA@WOLTERSKLUWER.PL

WWW.PROFINFO.PL

ISBN 978-83-264-8653-1

